Value Proposition

The current demand for existing network upgrades to 4G LTE is greater than the $4.7 billion capex budgeted to transition to 5G. Carriers are expected to spend an estimated $18 billion upgrading networks to 4G LTE. While 4G LTE networks can coexist with 5G, latent 3G networks are set to “sunset” by 2022, which requires communications infrastructure installers to have the technologies to upgrade latent networks to 4G LTE first, before continuing to transition to 5G. COMSovereign has assembled a portfolio of industry-leading, disruptive, communications and power technologies and other niche companies capable of addressing these needs with rapid integration and expansion. COMSovereign’s portfolio companies are all US companies, creating a unique pure-play US communications infrastructure company, an increasingly important security factor as more and more devices come online driven by the ongoing Internet of Things revolution. Overall, COMSovereign’s companies serve a total addressable market of $1.7 trillion.
